Application Disclosure
IMPORTANT DISCLOSURE (please read carefully): 1. This application is not a financing agreement and only begins the process for an alternative form of financing. Financing for all qualifying improvements must be repaid in a series of annual payments, and is payable and enforceable as non-ad valorem assessment which is a charge that will be collected in the same manner and at the same time as for payment of ad valorem property taxes. 2. A property owner cannot pay ad valorem property taxes due without also paying any and all non-ad valorem assessments due for that year at the same time. 3. Failure to pay your ad valorem property taxes and non-ad valorem assessments will cause a tax certificate to be issued against the property which could result in a loss of title. 4. Some mortgage lenders or secondary residential mortgage market purchasers, like FNMA or FMCC, may either (a) refuse to refinance an existing mortgage or (b) refuse to finance the purchase of any property, or (c) refuse to purchase mortgages in the secondary residential mortgage market, due to the superiority of a non-ad valorem assessment if your property is subject to a non-ad valorem assessment for qualifying improvements - the practical effect of which is that the balance due on a non-ad valorem assessment used to finance a qualifying improvement may have to be paid in full prior to any refinancing, new financing, or sale as the result of a purchase and sale of the property. 5. You may wish to consult with a financial and/or legal professional if you have questions before entering into any financing agreement for any qualifying improvement resulting from this application; once you enter into a financing agreement it will be binding on your property and will evidence irrevocably your consent to the imposition and levy of a non-ad valorem assessment for any qualifying improvements which will constitute a governmental lien equal to or on parity with ad valorem property taxes until paid in full.
